

Message from Kathy Kinloch, President, BCIT

On behalf of my colleagues at British Columbia Institute of Technology (BCIT), we are delighted to sponsor the Canada India Networking Initiative and particularly so given this year's theme: Health Civil Society through Engagement, Innovation and Technology. This theme and goal aligns perfectly with BCIT's provincial polytechnic mandate to prepare graduates to make a meaningful contribution to the industries and organizations that drive our economy and communities. We deliver this education to approximately 50,000 students annually at our five campuses in Greater Vancouver.

BCIT's applied education and research model empowers regional, national and global innovation and will help positively harness new and emerging technologies for a healthier and more sustainable civil society.

I would like to thank, Dr. Arun Garg, Chair and President, Canada India Network Society, for his visionary leadership and for convening this important exploration and conversation in our increasingly complex world. I look forward to meeting many of you.

Kathy Kinloch
